Credo

Walk upon this earth quietly Be always here and with yourself Neither trust nor distrust Do not love for it is never understood Leave hate behind for it is a burden Help only when asked, then move on Give as you can, expect nothing Beware of those who are takers Some do not fathom, "enough" Avoid givers who do not pause Some seek to ensnarl and bind Seek only harmony with self Look not for friends or companions They will come without being hailed Brotherhood is an ancient myth Life is the only bond that holds Dynamic and indifferent The Credo will oft be forgot Do not despair or feel remorse

Life is a tireless teacher

The earth an endless classroom

And the lesson will be taught

Again, and again, and again...